

Total PC Gaming secures Tomb Raider Underworld World Exclusive

Eidos chooses Total PC Gaming for Lara Croft exclusive

The newly launched Total PC Gaming magazine has scored a major coup by securing a world exclusive preview of Tomb Raider: Underworld on the PC, thanks to an exclusive deal between Imagine Publishing and industry giant Eidos.

On sale on 24 January, issue three of Total PC Gaming features never-seen-before screenshots, game information and developer interviews on the truly next-generation gameplay and environments gamers can expect upon Underworld's Christmas 2008 release.

In addition to looking behind the scenes at the development of the game, the feature uncovers several new additions to gameplay. This includes Lara's ability to target separate enemies while dual-wielding and attacking enemies while climbing.

"We're delighted that, after only a few months in print, Total PC Gaming has been able to secure an exclusive with the kudos and heritage of the Tomb Raider series," said Editor in Chief, Dave Harfield. "When it comes to PC gaming, there's no greater icon than Lara Croft and it's a testament to the quality of Total PC Gaming that Eidos chose this magazine as a platform on which to unveil her latest incarnation."

Russell Barnes, Editor added, "Since its launch in October 2007, Total PC Gaming has quickly become recognised by the industry and its readers as a heavyweight alternative to the staid crop of current PC games magazines. This exclusive is a clear sign that Total PC Gaming has arrived and is already a force to be reckoned with in the PC magazine market."

Total PC Gaming is the next-generation PC games magazine aimed at capturing the excitement and continued evolution of the burgeoning PC gaming scene. It incorporates dedicated modding, hardware and retro-gaming sections, and the industry's first MMO mini-magazine. Priced at just £3.99, Total PC Gaming features 148 glossy pages of the latest PC games news, previews, reviews, hardware group tests, retro classics and features.
