

Imagine unveils new Photoshop resource website

Good news for Photoshop users – a new site has launched that offers amazing free creative resources.

Photoshop Daily (www.photoshopdaily.co.uk) brings together everything that a Photoshop user could ever want. From the latest rumours and activities from Adobe, right through to showcasing cool gadgets or resource websites to expand Photoshop's creativity. If there is something happening that is of interest to Photoshop fans they will find it at the new Photoshop Daily website.

In addition to creative news, visitors will also benefit from a free creative resource every day. It might be a feature explaining how to master a certain Photoshop skill, a brush set to have some fun with, a photo pack to use in personal work, a desktop to help with inspiration or maybe a video tutorial to boost Photoshop prowess. The same team who produce the globally successful Advanced Photoshop and Photoshop Creative magazines are behind the Photoshop Daily site. Visitors to Photoshop Daily will be able to view content taken from both magazines, in addition to accessing exclusive downloads.

“Photoshop Daily is the perfect site for digital creatives,” said Jo Cole, Editor in Chief. “People can pop to the site each day and spend some time browsing the news, reading features or downloading free resources. It’s our way of giving back to the Photoshop community and saying thank you for supporting our two Photoshop magazines.”

“We are extremely pleased with our latest in-house developed project, Photoshop Daily,” said Ben Spencer, Head of Digital Projects (Online). “It is the perfect companion to our existing Advanced Photoshop and Photoshop Creative websites, offering further advertising opportunities for clients wanting to reach this niche audience online.”
